Hi [REDACTED],

I am just writing in regards to [REDACTED] in HaSS.

[REDACTED] has had class time in which to complete an assignment which was due today. Instead, he has only started it today. I have asked [REDACTED] over the last two weeks of working on it if he has needed help and he has refused. I have told [REDACTED] that he will need to complete some work at home in order to finish the assignment by Thursday. If he cannot get it submitted by Thursday, I will not be able to get it in for this term's grades.

The task sheet for the assignment is on the Google Classroom which [REDACTED] can access.

If you have any questions, please contact me.

Regards,

Hello Nikita

Thank you for your email which means a lot to us to understand more about [REDACTED]. I also had a fruitful session with the coordinator where we discussed his weakness and some possible pathway to make progress. Hopefully he'll improve.

Looking forward for your continue cooperation

With many thanks

Dear [REDACTED]

I am Nikita Mickan, [REDACTED] HaSS teacher. [REDACTED] is going along well in HaSS and is quite chatty but this can mean that he is off task at times.

In terms of his work, [REDACTED] needs to do some revision for a test on Thursday (about the Introduction to History unit) and ensure that he is up to date with the Industrial Revolution work that we have been doing. There are questions in the Google Classroom that he needs to complete and the textbook is also available in the Google Classroom that he can access.

On Thursday, students will be able to start their assignment on the Industrial Revolution.

If you have any questions or if you would like to chat with me about [REDACTED] in HaSS, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Regards,

Nikita Mickan
